OLD COLONY
GARDENS
1956

RONALD J. BEATTIE
ROUTE 3 BOX 535
CANBY, OREGON

March 9, 1956

Dear Friends,

Well-Iris Season is again upon us. I have my first iris blossoms out in the field. It is a small blue Juno hybrid called "Sind-Pers". It always races with the reticulatas to see which will be first to blossom.

I have high hopes that this will be the finest bloom season yet. It should be as we have had a foul winter. Starting with extremely severe freezes early in November and recurring freezes and snow until now. Most everything came through fine as all had been moved late in the summer and growth hadn't again commenced. Some of the seedlings were in active growth and I may have lost some of the bloom stalks.

I have some new varieties and many selected seedlings that I am anxious to see again and the extra interest of having Chet Tompkins Fleur De Lis Gardens only a few blocks away. I am looking forward to seeing all of his fine new reds and especially his new Brigadoon.

Just a few more blocks away, in the same general direction is Fred DeForest's home and planting and I have been most privileged in being able to see all of the new things as they bloomed. Canby will soon make a name for its self in the IRIS WORLD.

Those of you who have received this catalog for the past two years will note a change of name and ownership. Joseph D. Morgan, my dear friend and partner in the last two seasons passed away early in October necessitating the reorganization of the business. None of the aims of the original partnership have been changed. I am sure you will find my stock strong and healthy; and will grow, increase, and bloom profusely for you. We do not irrigate nor do we over feed the plants.

I hope anytime you come my way, that you will stop and say hello.

Sincerely

Ronald Beattie

FEATURING AGAIN HERMIT THRUSH "GRANT MITSCH 1955" NET-$15.⁰⁰

Hermit Thrush is a beautiful, ruffled and flairing, medium brown. It is from the same cross that produced Inca Chief; has a much taller stalk, about 40 inches, and normally it has three branches and a terminal. Usually ten to twelve blossoms per stalk.

The flowers are of extra heavy substance with falls that flair almost horizontally and the standards are arched and completely closed. The ruffling is most pronounced on the very round falls. There is a wonderful ballance between all parts of the flower and the plant.

I would call it's color about deep leather brown yet it has a bright and glistening finish. The color is applied very smoothly with no haft markings. It is less red than Argus Pheasant and much deeper and brighter than Pretty Quadroon.

It has bloomed in my garden since it was guested to me in 1950 and has always been a sensation. I have exhibited it for two years in my displays at the Greater Portland Iris Society's Annual Show where it caused considerable comment.

It is in several gardens that are to be visited during the 1956 National Iris Convention in Southern California.

Hermit Thrush has proven to be a fine parent. It is an easy seed parent and at times has plentiful pollen.
